

Article Overview

Major fiber optic cable manufacturers serving West Asia include Asian Cables (India) and Hengtong Group (China), both with large-scale production and international distribution networks.

Key Manufacturers

Asian Cables (India) Asian Cables, part of KEC International, operates two state-of-the-art manufacturing facilities in Vadodara and Mysuru, India, producing a wide range of telecom and optical fiber cables . Their annual production includes 600,000 fiber km of optical fiber cables, with ISO 9001, 14001, and 45001 certifications, and NABL-accredited quality labs. Asian Cables exports to over 90 countries, including West Asian markets, making it a reliable supplier for regional projects .

Hengtong Group (China) Hengtong Group is one of the world's top three optical fiber communication enterprises, with 12 manufacturing facilities and a global sales network covering South Asia and Southeast Asia, which often extends to West Asia . Hengtong produces the full industrial chain of fiber-optic communication products, including optical fibers, cables, and devices, and is known for high-capacity submarine and terrestrial cables .

Futong Group (China) Futong Group specializes in optical fiber preforms, optical fibers, and cables, with a fully integrated production chain and a focus on innovative technologies such as large-size preforms and submarine cables . While based in China, Futong exports extensively to Asian markets, including West Asia, and offers customized solutions for telecom infrastructure .

Considerations for West Asia

- o Export-oriented factories: Many manufacturers in India and China supply West Asian countries through regional distributors or direct export.
- o Certifications: Look for ISO, IEC, and NABL certifications to ensure compliance with international standards.
- o Product range: Single-mode, multi-mode, armored, submarine, and low-smoke zero-halogen (LSZH) cables are commonly available.
- o Lead times and MOQ: Factories like Asian Cables typically have minimum order quantities (e.g., 50 km for long-meter cables) and delivery times of 15-20 days depending on order size . These manufacturers provide a strong starting point for sourcing fiber optic cables in West Asia, either through direct purchase or via regional distributors.
